Clover Hill

Clover Hill, March 9.— "A Christian's Responsibility to His Government" was the subject of a talk given to the Clover Hill Home Demonstration Club Tuesday evening by the Rev. William H. Carey.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Jacob Lewis, Federation Goal Leader of the club. Mr. Carey said that in recent Billy Graham broadcasts he had noticed how adroitly Mr. Graham sidestepped political issues, and he gave the club to understand that he too, wished to avoid anything of a controversial nature. However, he did think that as Christians, we had a great responsibility to put the right man in office and he quoted, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's."

Mr. Carey brought out the fact that corruption in government was brought about by an indifferent attitude on the part of voters and that failure to cast a vote was as bad as voting for the wrong man. Repeatedly, the speaker emphasized how fortunate we, in America, were to live under a republican form of government, and insisted that if we wished to continue that way we should study the platforms of the candidates for office and be very sure the person for whom we voted was a man of integrity. Mr. Carey closed his talk with an admonition to each citizen to realize that in his hands lay the responsibility "that government of the people, by the people and for the people should not perish from the earth."

Mrs. Russell Conner, president presided at the meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. T. M. Richardson, with Mrs. L. W. Carter co-hostess. Mr. Carey, as a part of the devotional, gave the club a message in song, "I Am Satisfied With Jesus." He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Franklin Vaughan.

Guests of the club besides the above mentioned, were Mrs. T. E. Richardson, Mrs. Edwin Carter, Messers. T. M. Richardson and C. L. Johnson, Mrs. W. H. Carey and Miss Mary Catherine Johnson, assistant agent-in-training.

Miss Johnson gave the demonstration on "Buying Hose."

One new member, Mrs. Carey, was welcomed to the club.

MILK DISTRIBUTOR MARGINS UNDER FIRE

Comments and criticisms of the distributing industry for the wide difference between the farm price and the retail price of dairy products are on the increase, note: H. C. Conner, associate agricultural economist at VPI.

Producer groups, consumer groups, and members of legislatures and of Congress, have joined in the attacks. The unfortunate aspect of the current controversy, Conner says, is the lack of well-founded factual information. There is also a lack of appreciation of the overall problem. Whether distributor margins should go down, and how much, when the price of milk decreases depends on a rather complicated relationship of several factors.

There are not enough facts available for such an analysis, Conner says, but he does have a few figures which will give an idea of what is taking place.

Published data indicate that the farmer's share of the consumer's milk dollar dropped from 53% in the 1947-49 period to 46% in 1954. Since the retail price has not come down, this means the distributor's margin in cents per quart has increased over the period. Figures released by the Agricultural Marketing Service show that on the average in 25 large cities across the country, the margin on a quart of milk delivered to homes increased from 9.3c in 1950 to 11.5c in 1954—a jump of 24%.

But this is only part of the story. What has happened to costs in the meantime?

Several studies indicate that the costs for the items used in processing and distributing milk have been going up in recent years. The USDA Agricultural Marketing Service has just completed a cost analysis of 20 distributors in the north central and southern states. This analysis finds that the cost of handling 100 pounds of milk in these plants went up 23c from 1953 to 1954. As a result, these companies netted 10c less profit per 100 pounds of milk in 1954 than in 1953.

These may not be typical plants, Conner says. But the results suggest that the increasing margins may have gone mainly to cover increased costs rather than to enlarge profits.

TREE PLANTING PROGRAM MEETS WITH SUCCESS

By R. F. Holmes, Forester
Virginia Forest Service

The tree planting program in the Farmville District has entered into its final month of the 1954-55 planting season. Already a new planting record has been set. Recently the quota for this district was raised to two million seedlings, but this amount has been sold and distributed and word has been received from the tree nursery that it is anticipated that they will be able to meet the needs and demands within the district.

Foresters continue to urge landowners to keep up their good work. To those of you who have not considered the merits of planting trees give serious thought to the future demands for wood which are increasing as each year passes. It has been predicted by the paper industry that the pulp and paper industry will double its production by 1975. This does not take into consideration the increase in demand for other wood products and those new products yet undeveloped. As the competition for available timber supplies mounts, those landowners who have the trees will receive the better and higher prices.

Another point to consider is the increasing cost of producing farm crops. Already many farmers have had to seek employment elsewhere to supplement their income. Is it not wise to reconsider your farm lands to see which acres are the most productive and rule out those acres that continually fail to produce a profit. It is those non-profit producing acres that we as foresters feel should be planted to pines. Once the planting has been completed you need only to protect the trees from fire and grazing. At each year passes these trees continue to provide interest on your investment in the form of annual growth. Each and every acre of land should be made to produce to its maximum the crop it is best suited to grow.

It is possible that some landowners lack the necessary capital to carry out a tree planting program. Check with your local A. C. P. office as to the assistance they offer under their program.

If the wood using industries of Virginia are to continue to play a vital part in our economy, the wood must be grown to fill their needs.

Appomattox is a growing town.

MARCH PRICE OUTLOOK GIVEN FOR VEGETABLES

A slight dip in vegetable prices is forseen for 1955 as compared to last year, say agricultural economists at VPI.

Asparagus acreage increases of 5% may result in somewhat lower prices. Movement of asparagus to canners and freezers may come earlier than usual.

Cabbage cut before late May is expected to be profitable. Most of this cabbage was set last fall.

Collard supplies are adequate, and U. S. No. 1 grade may average 85c to $1 per bushel to growers when cutting is resumed.

Stripped kale for cosumer packaging is in good demand. Prices from 90c to $1 are expected when cutting is resumed.

Onion prices in March will range from $2 to $2.25.

Storage stocks of late potatoes are 10 million bushels below those of 1954. Prices from $3 to $3.15 for U. S. No. 1 grade per 100 pound sack are expected in March.

New crop potatoes in Florida are bringing $2 to $2.10 U. S. No. 1 grade in 50 pound sacks. The new crop in Virginia dug before June 20 is expected to be profitable.

Rutabagas should bring $1.20 to $1.25 per 50 pound mesh bag.

Spinach supplies have been affected by freezing weather, but supplies are adequate and prices are $1 to $1.10 per graded bushel basket.

Demand is strong for high quality Porto Rican sweet potatoes of U. S. No. 1 grade, and prices from $4 to $4.25 should prevail.

Good quality turnips should bring $1.25 to $1.35 U. S. No. 1 grade per bushel basket.

KEEPING FARM RECORDS OFTEN NEGLECTED

The business of keeping farm records is an important but often neglected phase of farming, say VPI agricultural economists.

Usually, the economists say, the farmer realizes he needs records about income tax time, when the government demands proof instead of guesses.

Records are most important for anyone paying income taxes. They not only help to prove you have paid all the taxes you owe, but they keep the payments down to just exactly what is owed.

And records of the past year's operations provide the only safe and reliable basis for making adjustments in future operations. As the margin of profit narrows, it becomes more necessary to keep accurate records.

A carefully kept series of records can aid the farmer in deciding what to produce, how much to produce, and how to go about producing it.

Another point—records not only help the farmer plan and adjust his business, they are an invaluable aid in borrowing money. A banker is much more likely to decide to loan money if the would-be borrower is able to furnish a clear set of records.

The farmer interested in keeping better records will find county agents and bankers eager to help, the economists point out.

"SALT of the EARTH"

The real value in the plants you buy is how large and solid is its earth-ball—how fresh-dug out of the ground it is when you get it? According to chemistry plants kept in sawdust quickly lose their Nitrogen—the wood particles use it up to rot themselves. That's why we never see weeds growing in sawdust piles!

That's why we never let our plants stand around waiting to be sold—we dig them fresh to your order.

Open Sundays for Visiting or Placing Orders.
